Team Decision Making: Are Three Brains Better Than One? by Prof. Cecilia CHENG

- Professor, Department of Psychology, The University of Hong Kong
- Associate Dean (Postgraduate Education), Faculty of Social Sciences, The University of Hong Kong
- Director, Hongkong Psychology and Health Project

Cecilia CHENG is a professor of psychology at the University of Hong Kong. She specializes in personality, social, health, and cross-cultural psychology. Her work has been published in several international top-tier refereed journals such as Psychological Bulletin, Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, Journal of Consulting and Clinical Psychology, and Health Psychology.

Prof. CHENG is a fellow of the Association for Psychological Science. She received the ICP Early Career Research Award in 2000, Fulbright Senior Scholar Award in 2009, Cambridge Hughes Hall Fellowship in 2013, and RGC Humanities and Social Sciences Prestigious Fellowship in 2015. She has served as an Associate Editor of Journal of Personality and Social Psychology (Personality Processes and Individual Differences section).

At the University of Hong Kong, her research team seeks to enhance both mental and physical health for quality living for Hong Kong people. To realize this aim, the team applies theoretical frameworks from personality and social psychology to the understanding of real-life problems such as Internet addiction, stress and coping, psychosomatic disorders, emotional disorders, and health-risk behaviors. The research group also organizes workshops, courses, and lectures in local schools and community centers to promote public awareness regarding mental and physical health.
